A DUBLIN IN IRELAND RECRUITMENT SITE MISLEADING AND SCAMMING UNSUSPECTING JOB SEEKERS

The South African Weather Service (SAWS) hereby wishes to alert South Africans of the site mentioned above about fraudulent activities of copying the organisations' old vacancies from its website (www.weathersa.co.za/careers) and advertising them as new though the vacancies have long closed and are already filled. This is a deceitful way of driving traffic to their site and therefore making money out of the unsuspecting job seekers. The overseas site has no relations with the South African Weather Service at all as our organisation does not use services of recruitment agencies nor sites.

If this is not fought by all South Africans, it will bring the country and many of its good standing organisations into disrepute but most heartlessly, take away the much-needed money from the job seeking South Africans. The SAWS hereby appeals to other organisations to be vigilant of such atrocities to their brands and reputations but mostly, to the plight of unemployed country men and women.

This statement is a plea to the media to please help alert South Africans as this also puts their personal information at risk of exploitation.

For more information and media enquiries please liaise with the South African Weather Service communications:
